

Studies show a clear correlation between early exposure of children to the arts and increased long-term critical reasoning, communication, and social skills. When you support Young Audiences of Greater Cleveland, you are helping Northeast Ohio students and teachers experience the joy of learning and artistic creation through music, dance, theatre, literature, and visual arts. Young Audiences brings local professional artists directly into the classroom to inspire and engage students, and shows teachers how the arts can strengthen teaching and learning all year long.
